Ninja Secrets To Be Revealed In Full Force

With an impressive line up of stars already generating much anticipation for its production, The Ninja will also be showcasing for the first time ever seen in movie history what is commonly referred to as "Ninja magic", the Kuji-In in full force.

Director and actor in the action film, Rob Baard, also a qualified black belt ninja, uses Kuji-In as a central theme throughout the film and audiences will be educated and entertained as to how the practice can enhance individuals in areas of better thinking, quickness of mind and body and willpower and the secrets of the ninja.

To the uninitiated of the ancient art, Kuji-In is believed to be the source of a ninja's powers of spiritual and mental strength and Rob has been fortunate to have been counselled and guided in recent times by Maha Vajra, a real life esoteric Buddhist master.

Maha Vajra currently trains US police detectives, security agents as well as US Special Forces in techniques including; expanded awareness to spot danger, threats in crowds and behind walls.

Kuji-In is a ritual process that encourages the development of body, mind and spirit. It enhances the nervous system, energy channels of the body, mental abilities, comprehension, quickness of body and mind, and opens the doors on great spiritual depth. Further training in the Kuji In moves into ninja mind control techniques.

It involves the combination of many tools to focus all of the practitioner's attention; hand gesture, spoken words, mental visualization, philosophic contemplation, focus points on the body.

Unlike many traditional practices, Kuji-In was initially developed for everyone to access and use. Over hundreds of years, it has been adapted in different forms including martial artists, holistic healers, spiritual seekers and the general public.

The incorporation of this art into the film provides "The Ninja" with an exciting never before seen on screen element to excite movie goers. Rob hopes movie audiences will embrace the practice and appreciate its value to the film, commenting that "Kuji-In is a practice that not too many people would know about, let alone participate, however its benefits include delivering new abilities and expanding one's self-awareness."

He further adds "Its incorporation into the film brings even more depth to the character and story. Maha Vajra's willingness to train and mentor as well as be an advisor on set during production will ensure the audience are treated to something really exciting."
